PORT OF PALM BEACH MOVES ROYAL PALMS TO AFRICA

Royal palm trees destined for the African nation of Angola are loaded at Port of Palm Beach.

RIVIERA BEACH, Fla. – Royal palm trees bound for Africa are the latest specialty cargo to move through Port of Palm Beach.

Some 3,000 of the stately trees, valued at some $500 each, recently were loaded onto the BBC EMS at the port by Teeters Agency & Stevedoring. The locally grown trees arrived on some 100 flatbed trucks, which were loaded directly onto the vessel.

At their destination of Angola, the trees are to be used in a community development project.
